

Ribstone and Wain. Play To 3-3 Deadlock

LOCALS ARE HANDICAPPED BY SMALL RINK—RIBSTONE
GOALIE HIT BY PUCK

On Friday evening last, the Wainwright senior hockey club journeyed to Ribstone by train to play a game of hockey at that point. When all the smoke had cleared away the score stood 3-3.

The game was played during the afternoon on account of there being no lights on the rink. The locals were handicapped to some extent due to the rink being considerably smaller than the one they are accustomed to playing on.

The game was fairly clean throughout, referee Jones having to hand out only about half a dozen penalties. The game was marred to some extent during the attempt, when G. Burton, brilliant goalie for Ribstone, was hit in the face by the puck, resulting from a flip shot by Ernie Dupre, but fortunately was not seriously injured. He finished the game after a little patching up.

The first period opened with the play wide open with Ribstone boys trying out the Wainwright cinderella with a number of long shots from outside the blue line. They were finally rewarded when V. Ganderton, Wainwright defence player, attempted to stop a long shot by George Phillips, but the puck glanced off his glove and into the net, the Wainwright goal "Skinner" Coffield having no chance to save. This was all the scoring during the first period, the teams going in for a breather with Ribstone leading 1-0.

The second frame opened up considerably faster with Wainwright on the offensive and trying hard for the equalizer. About eight minutes had passed when Douglas Wallace picked up a loose puck at centre ice and shot from outside the blue line which bulged the hemp for the first goal for Wainwright. A few minutes later Wainwright went into the lead on a double assist play from a face off. Earl Lane to Ernie Dupre to Sid Worton who scored from close in. Ribstone came right back when Peterson scored on a shot well inside the blue line. This ended the scoring for the 2nd period.

The third period was pretty much a repetition of the second. Wainwright took the lead again, Ernie Dupre scoring on a pass from Earl Lane directly in front of the net. When it looked like Wainwright's game with only a few minutes to go, Peterson pushed one across the goal mouth from a scrimmage behind the net, which evened things up on the score board again. Neither team were able to score during the rest of the period.

It was decided not to play the tie off on account of darkness coming on and no lights.

Referee Jones handled the bell.

ASPEN

Mr. and Mrs. Bushey entertained at their home on Friday evening, January 12th, to fittingly celebrate the birthday anniversary of the host. About 20 friends were present and partook of a delicious supper, coffee and dancing rounded out what all described as a truly delightful evening.

A very enjoyable time was spent on Monday, January 8th, when nearly 60 friends gathered at the home of Mr. Robert Maughan, 87, to give him a surprise party on his 79th birthday. Cards, dancing and games kept everyone lively till the early hours. Mr. Maughan, who settled here in 1906, is truly an old-timer of our district and as such was fittingly honored. He enjoyed it just as much as the young folks.

Keeping at The Top.

Always seeking to keep abreast of the times, and mark its progress in the community by improvements for the benefit of its readers, The Star has now concluded, at some considerable expense, arrangements whereby it will be enlarged to its former eight-page volume beginning with next month.

Several new features will be included weekly in the make-up of the paper, not the least of which will be a weekly resume of the doings of the Federal parliament prepared especially for us by a strictly non-partisan member of the Press Gallery at Ottawa. At the opening of the Provincial Legislature the same class of reading will be supplied our readers from an independent writer and in this way all readers of The Star can keep closely in touch with the laws and law-makers.

In addition to the many features already running in The Star, the enlargement of its issue will also include weekly a good modern serial story, "The Bookman," "The Sunday School Lesson," with explanations, "The Fact Finders" (pictures), "Latest Fashions" and a weekly Comic Strip.

A RECORD TO BE EXCEEDINGLY PROUD OF

MONTREAL, Que.—One passenger killed in a train accident out of a total of 469,048,529 carried 16,931,346,109 miles is certainly a record to be proud of but this is what happened on Canadian and American railways in a single year, according to information supplied by the Bureau of Railway News and Statistics, which embraces all railways in North America. This outstanding showing, Canadian National Railway officials state, exemplifies the high degree of perfection which railway travel has reached and is the result of educating the employees along the lines of safety and the institution of safety devices.

Big Contest Draws Players For Bridge

NICE LITTLE CARD PARTY IS FOLLOWED BY DANCE

On Friday evening last, the Masonic Hall was the scene of a novel bridge contest when both contract and auction bridge were played, those following the latter style of play arranging for their own partners.

Some fairly high scores were the result of the evening's play and at the close of the contest the high score cards were held by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dickins in contract play, while Mrs. T. Lissimore and Mr. W. Seguin turned in the high at auction bridge.

After all enjoying a delicious buffet lunch, dancing was indulged in for a couple of hours, the musicians kindly officiating being Mr. and Mrs. G. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. M. Pawling.

LOCAL CURLERS LOSE DAWSON CUP GAME

On Friday last a couple of rinks of local curlers journeyed to Viking with the full intention of returning with the "Bill Dawson" trophy as a reward for their trip. However, their hopes were dashed to the ground for despite the splendid games they played and the hospitalities they received at the hotel where they were forced to take the low end of a 21-20 score at the hands of the Finch and Kelly rinks.

The local men playing were: D. Davidson (skip), M. L. Forster, C. W. McLeod and F. Stewart. S. Hagerman (skip), G. Agnew, J. W. Stuart and H. Schlitt. Better luck next time, boys!

Worth-While Report Of Worth-While Work

CHILD WELFARE BRANCH OF
WOMEN'S INSTITUTE DESERVE
MUCH PRAISE

In a report of the Child Welfare Branch signed by Mrs. Lillian Stuart and Mrs. Kathleen Groer, president and secretary of the local branch of the Women's Institute, it is plainly shown that the ladies of that organization are worthy of the highest commendation for their efforts on behalf of the under-privileged, and especially is this so when connected with their work during the past festive season.

No less than 112 hampers of supplies were made up and distributed to the needy. 21 of these being placed in Wainwright homes, and the other 92 being sent out to the following districts adjacent: Cliff Edge, Gerald, Fairview, Asot, Heath, Barview, Trafalgar, and Sydenham.

In addition to this work there has also been distributed throughout the past year and to date to those in dire need of such necessities as medicine, clothing, etc., and very many letters of appreciation have been received for the society's efforts on behalf of the recipients, proving beyond doubt that the work has been very worth-while and amply repaying all support it is possible to give it.

As it is the hope of the members that this work may be carried on again during 1934, donations of cast-off clothing will be greatly appreciated. This may be left at the Star office when you drive to town.

"Private Life" Comes To Elite Theatre

NEW FILM VERSION OF NOEL COWARD'S COMEDY-DRAMA
PROVES ALLURING

The Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer film version of Coward's smart comedy-drama which Manager Brunner is bringing to the theatre for Thursday, Friday and Saturday this week played the Broadway boards for many weeks—first with Coward himself and Gertrude Lawrence as leads and later with Madge Kennedy-Otto Kruger combination as the bickering couple whose petty arguments lead to divorce, who are thrown together by accident when both are on different honeymoon, who finally bicker and quarrel and into a reconciliation which at the end looks as though it will stick.

On the screen Bob Montgomery and Norma Shearer handle the roles which made New York's followers of the legitimate laugh for many weeks over their divorce troubles. When the two couples meet later accidentally, the former "happy couple" leave their present respective wife and husband flat and repair to a mountain camp in the Alps, where the outraged husband and wife find them after a particularly violent and deliciously amusing battle, following which the bickers see the light and escape bag and baggage. The "second half" in each case are then left awkwardly breaking records and other things over each other's heads.

From start to finish it is a delightful comedy with enough of the dramatic to hold off the humorists.

Printed Where You Used To Live

Tisn't filled with cuts and pictures, nor the latest news dispatches;

And the paper's often dampened, and the print is sometimes blurred.

There is only one edition, and the eye quite often catches
Traces of a missing letter and at times a mis-spelled word.

No catalogues nor "specials" anywhere the eye engages.
The make-up is maybe a trifle crude and primitive;

But an atmosphere of home life fills and permeates the pages
Of the little country paper printed where you used to live.

How the heart grows soft and tender while its columns you're perusing.

Every item is familiar, every name you know full well;
And a flood of recollections passes over you as you're musing

On the past, and weaves about you an imaginative spell
You can see the old home village once again in fancy, seeming

And their faces rise before you as you're idly, fondly dreaming
Over the little country paper printed where you used to live.

And you note a vine-clad cottage, with the roses nestling round it Hear the voice of mother calling for the long-gone fugitive.

Like the echo of her pleading, memories repeat and sound it Through the little country paper printed where you used to live.

Every printed line reminds you of the days long since departed—
Here a childhood's chum is mentioned, there a schoolmate's name appears;

And the eye grows moist in reading, while the soul grows heavy Heard the changes time has wrought, brought the swiftly passing years.

Memory's scroll has deep impressions stamped upon its face forever,
Of sweet pleasures which the busy city life can never give;
And in fancy you are roaming through the quiet town wherever
You peruse the country paper printed where you used to live.—Ex.

OVERCOMING
UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION

Many theories have been expounded during the past few years as to methods of relieving the world of the burdensome question of unemployment; the chief one, probably, the advocating of a shorter work week and shorter daily hours says the Drumbeater Mail.

This undoubtedly would help, but a solution now offered by a group of Californians, seems to be even better than that.

The idea of this group is based on the assumption, or fact, that the "machine-age" can no longer provide labor for all her people, and in facing this truth the obvious solution is to get rid of part of the people. That may sound like a hard-boiled statement, but the group has no intentions of exciting another great war, or of chloroforming fifty per cent of the populace.

The sensible course to follow would be to get rid of those who are slowing up—the men who have attained the age of fifty or sixty—and pension them off, filling their vacated occupations with younger material.

How will the money be raised to pension these people is a question which arises. The group readily finds an answer by stating that "you expect to pay for what you get in this hard world," and offers a workable solution:

A national sales tax would be applied to everything purchased, no matter how small or large, and the money derived therefrom would be ear-marked for pensions. It would merely mean that everybody in the country would be putting a little away every day to provide for later life. Just as one might put away a certain amount every month in some form of insurance. The difference being that having a cent or two added to purchasable commodities would not be felt so acutely as endeavoring to save up a monthly payment from the weekly cheque-budgeting in private families usually falls short of the mark set. It is estimated by the Californian group that if such a system were carried out, and a moderate tax assessed on commodities, every man and woman could be paid a pension of two hundred dollars per month after the age of sixty. In any case, whatever tax was assessed the pensioners would be assured of a good living and money would be put into circulation at all times.

With the older folk laid off, all the young ones would have work; there would be no poverty and every one would be assured a life income.

PLANNING THE HOME GROUNDS

A definite plan is a basic consideration in any scheme of landscape beauty around the home. This permits a portion being done each year without disturbing the final layout of lawns, trees, shrubs and roads.

Every home should have, where possible, a lawn which lies in front of the house. This gives an opportunity to observe the seasonal beauty from the house and invariably provides a welcome setting for the home. A lawn in front permits the admission of health-giving sunshine.

Location of trees has special consideration in the prairie country. The future growth particularly of their root systems taking moisture from weaker plants must be carefully planned. Frequently trees can be used advantageously to provide shade in hot weather. In open country, particularly, they should be located with the idea of wind protection.

Shrubs are available in many forms and bloom colors. To effectively show their beauty the taller growing material should be in the background. Often shrubbery can be used effectively to gather snow for protection and moisture. An assessment that will give bloom throughout the season should be kept in mind. When a shrub is used for a hedge there is an additional feature of desiring to enclose something.

Flowers are a necessary part of the plan. These should be grouped to give effect. Adequate provision for annuals and perennials is necessary according to individual taste.
Moisture, sunlight and wind exposure are additional points to consider.

Roads, like the whole plan should be designed with the idea of beauty.
A square effect in the arrangement of roads, trees, shrubs and flowers should be eliminated. A good axiom to keep in mind when designing roads, paths or walks is that a curved line is the prettiest distance between two points.

Additional information on home beautification can be obtained by sending your problem to the Dominion Experimental Station, Scott, and a booklet containing over one hundred tested trees and shrubs will be mailed on request.

REMEMBER THIS

This is the season when calendar salesmen get going, to sign on the dotted line for something they may not want a year from now. If the home town merchant or business man trades at home he can get calendars by ordering in October or even in November, when he knows what the season has been like, and just what amount he wishes to spend in this way. Some of these calendar salesmen also have the lightening rod man beat a mile in their ability to get two prices for their product. Buy your calendars where you are likely to get full value for your money, and where you can get them when you want them.

PUSHED OR PUSHING

By Arthur B. Rhinow

We were nearing home during the rush hours of New York City's traffic, when a friend of mine indulged in a facetious paradox.

"In the subway rush you can't go as you please," he said "you have to follow the fellow in back of you."

He meant, of course that the fellow behind us has more to do with directing our progress than the man in front of us, or we ourselves. But that is true only in a limited sense.

Canada's Famous Hangman Who Has Taken 500 Lives Is Human Despite Calling

By GILBERT DRAPEL
(Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

"Look, there's Ellis!" The speaker, a bank clerk, indicated a slim, draggard man, wearing thick rimmed spectacles, who was walking towards the paying teller's cage in the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

It was a mild autumn day, and the man whom most of the staff were watching was wearing a grey suit and grey felt hat. In one hand he carried a cane, in the other a pair of gloves. On his feet were brightly polished shoes and spats.

After exchanging a remark or two with the teller, the man went out, apparently oblivious of the interest his visit had caused.

Has Hanged 500

But why should this man's entrance to a bank make the clerk's nudge one another and whisper,
"Look, there's Ellis!"

Because Arthur Ellis, in his role of Canadian executioner, has hanged more than 500 murderers in towns and cities throughout the Dominion, and because it is human nature to watch, when the opportunity presents itself, a man being paid for taking life.

For the performance of his grim tasks there is no more meticulously dressed individual to be found among the crowds of officials and official representatives than Arthur Ellis.

Cut-away morning coat, black vest piped with white, dark grey striped trousers, wing collar, faultless furin-hand tie and black shoes complete the ensemble.

Precise, perfect master of the situation, while nerves about him threaten to crack under the terrific strain, while he takes charge of the group, which always includes a coroner's jury, newspaper men, sheriff, deputy sheriffs and guards.

Come, let us inspect the scene of the macabre preparations. Having arrived at the base of the scaffold:
"Gentlemen, when the procession mounts the stairway, take your hats off. It is only a mark of respect to the dying," Ellis explains.

The hour arrives. The tense stillness is broken by a curt order: "Under that door." This refers to the door leading into the courtyard of the jail. The words are spoken with the command of a martinet accustomed to instant obedience.

Yet, within, there is no undue haste.
This slim man, scarcely five feet six inches in height, whose dark eyes gleam behind thick-lensed glasses, is anything but ostentatious. Almost tenderly the condemned man's wrists are strapped together before he is back before the sinister procession forms outside the death cell. Then the marchers take their places as indicated by the hangman.

Nothing is left undone to make the dying man's last ordeal as speedily and merciful as possible. Within three or four minutes of his departure from his cell, he who is to pay the supreme penalty of an earthly court has mounted the stairway, stepped upon the trap, submitted to the adjustment of the noose and black hood and a strap around his knees, and has crashed out of this world.

Ellis in Foreground

Ellis holds no official position, though rarely does an execution take place in Canada at which he does not officially. He is engaged by the sheriff of the district where a hanging is scheduled, for the law makes the sheriff responsible for the carrying out of the death sentence and if he cannot secure Ellis' services, he must perform this horrible act himself or risk entrusting it to an amateur.

Hanging more than 500 men and women without a hitch is Arthur Ellis' unique record. He is not ashamed of his profession, which he regards as an obligation placed upon him by society.

"Who put me where I am?" he is wont to demand, when the subject arises at some informal gathering.
"Surely it was you yourself and the other citizens of this country."

Now for the more human side of Ellis' character.

Imagine Arthur Ellis helping a little ten-year-old girl to save up to buy a buffalo ranch in the west; who organizes football clubs for the youngsters living in his district; who not only buys them footballs and uniforms, but also intercedes with senior clubs on their behalf for the use of playing fields and so forth.

"Uncle Arthur"

The story about the buffalo ranch reveals Ellis in particularly incongruous light. One of his juvenile friends named Evelyn, though only ten years old, was for a time a very extravagant child. Then Uncle Arthur—he is Uncle Arthur to most of the children who know him—thought of a way to persuade her not to squander so much money on candy and such things.

"Evelyn," he said to her one day,
"for every five cents you put in your bank instead of spending on your tummy—I will give you a buffalo nickel. And by the time you are 21 years old you will have enough to buy a buffalo ranch in the west. You will own it and I'll manage it."

One day a cheryman called at Ellis' home. "Mr. Ellis," he began, after a slight preamble, "we understand that you are an Anglican, but we never see you at church. Why is that?"

His Philosophy

"I am a religious man," the executioner replied, "but I am not what you would call a churchman. Now I would like to ask you something: Do the members of your congregation make a practice of providing warm clothes for poor children during the winter? Do they look after their less fortunate neighbors' empty coal bins? That happens to be my religion.
I'm afraid, however, that I would not be the best member of your church."

The clergyman left, a thoughtful man. A few days later in the course of an address to the members of a curing club, he said, "There is a man in this parish whose society does not bring him the respect, not to say the admiration of one highly discerning and cultured man."

SAWDUST IN MANURE

There is a more or less general impression among farmers that manure from stables and cow-barn in which sawdust has been used as litter is injurious to the land. While this suspicion may have some foundation the Dominion Chemistry Division has never been able to discover a single instance of such injury, although inquiry has been made both in Canada and in the United States. One word of caution is necessary. Horse manure from stables using sawdust heats very rapidly, and excessive fermentation may injure the manure. It should be kept moist and compact.

The Road To Better Health

By Canadian Medical Association

CONSTIPATION

Constipation is one of the most common ailments. Health demands that the body get rid of its waste products. Regularity of evacuation is desirable, but there are individual differences in the frequency of elimination compatible with health. It is generally agreed that at least one regular evacuation daily is the best habit for most people.

Constipation may be due to some abnormal condition which requires medical care for its correction. Most cases of constipation grow out of faulty habits of living, so most cases can be corrected by attention to habits. To do so requires perseverance, but it will correct the constipation.

The most important point is regularity of habit. A regular time should be selected. A half-hour after eating is suggested, as the taking of food serves as a natural stimulus to the digestive tract. Without fail, whether or not an urge is felt, the toilet should be visited at this fixed time. If this is persisted in, then a regular habit is developed, and a bowel movement will take place at that time.

Most people do not drink sufficient water. The amount of water required depends upon occupation and season, for these factors determine the amount of water lost by the body through perspiration. A glass or two of water upon rising and between meals will help to overcome constipation.

For many reasons, green vegetables and fresh fruits should be included in the diet each day. They provide bulk in the diet and so promote intestinal activity. There are cases, with an irritable bowel, where roughage is contra-indicated, and, in any case, the roughage idea should not be overdone.

Along with regularity of toilet habit and proper diet must go exercise. Regular daily exercise which will bring the large muscles of the body into action is most desirable. A simple way to secure such exercise is to walk out of doors for an hour daily.

One word of warning is added. Just as long as relatives or enemies are used, constipation will persist. The bowel relies upon these as a crutch, and so natural elimination is not secured.

Simple, isn't it?—regularity of habit, sensible diet and exercise to overcome constipation. Constipation predisposes to physical disorders, causes headaches, lowers efficiency and favors fatigue. It is altogether an undesirable condition. It is worth the effort necessary and the persistence required to establish a regular habit of elimination.

Reminders of Other Days

(From The Star Also)

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Mr. Jas. Kinney, of Edgerton, gave a full report of how he made some of his wheat pay him $10.00 per bushel by having it gusted at the local mill.

Mr. Orion Limpert, the local dairyman, held a big auction sale of his business and effects on the farm south of town.

No less than 32 quarter sections of land were thrown open for homestead in the immediate vicinity according to an advertisement in The Star. They were surely picked up with a rush, too.

Mr. Bill Inted refereed a hockey game at rink when the town boys walloped the Holden aggregation to the tune of 18-2.

Mayor M. L. Forster bought an option on the corner lots opposite the depot held by the Grand Trunk Pacific R.R. for a hotel site.

"The Buffalo Park must go" was the slogan of many in this territory, but despite a big controversy over the matter of taking the animals somewhere else and throwing open the land for homesteads the Federal authorities stood pat and nothing was done in the matter.

Mr. Herb Smith brought in a number of prospective settlers and sold over three sections of land to some of their party.

TEN YEARS AGO

A new Town Band was organized by the C. N. R. Social Club with nearly thirty instrument under Bandmaster Huntingford.

The new large rotary drill of the Boundary Oil Co. was brought in from the coast to drill a deep well on the leases held on the Wood-Wainwright farm west of town.

Wainwright beat Chauvin at the Edgerton rink and thus brought back the "Bill Dawson" curling trophy to town. This made the third time Bob's Dunsmore's rink had secured this coveted honor.

The wife of Mr. E. Benoit passed away this week.

The Gilt Edge Council granted releases under the Seed Grain Liens Act for securing oil rights on land in their jurisdiction.

Fifty-two degrees below zero was registered north of town for several hours one day this week.

Owing to non-support by the merchants, Editor Archer at Rivet closed the plant of The Times there.

ORIGIN OF WORDS AND PHRASES

"WHOOPEE"

It is hard to believe that our current "along" expression "whoopie," shunned by all who would have dignity in their speech, is of time-honored origin; not only that but of rather high-hat origin. Some people who know this attribute it to Shakespeare, but its origin goes back even farther than that.

On the very best authority, there is recorded use of the word "whoopie" by Palgrave, one of the chaplains of Henry VIII. That dates thirty-four years before the birth of Shakespeare. Still further back, the word appears in a Malay play, "Mau-kind," which dates about 1450. This is in manuscript form for printing was not yet known in England. Its spelling there is "whopee."

"A CODE"

The last thing in the world that would occur to us as a description of a "code" would be "the stem of a tree." Yet that is how it started. The first idea the word "code" brings to mind of course, is a secret code. Then there is a code of laws, and the derivative "to codify" to reduce to a system. All these meanings meet in a system of the principles or rules relating to a subject—a code.

And the connection with "the stem of a tree" which is the meaning of the word's Latin source, "codex," is found in the fact that from "the stem of a tree" came a board smeared with wax to write on, a primitive form of book. The extension of this name to the thing that was written on it for permanent keeping, gave us our "code."

TO HAVE ONE'S HEAD IN THE CLOUDS

To have one's head in the clouds is to exist in an unreal world, to live in dreams. We are all familiar with the use of the expression in modern speech, usually with a disparaging implication as "you can't rely on anyone with his head in the clouds." The words have their source in a work of such imagination that has become immortal. That is John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." It was published in 1684.

BETTY BARCLAY'S HELPFUL HINTS

Are you food faddish? Then budget your food allowance to include the health insurance provided by milk, fresh fruits and vegetables. Fresh fruit is particularly important and may be found during these months when other fruits are out of season, in the orange.

This fruit provides vitamin C, too, often inadequate in the bread-potato-and-meat meals of winter. Lack of vitamin C results in malnutrition, retarded growth and growing pains in children, a general below-par physical condition and dental troubles. Vitamin C cannot be stored in the body. Foods containing it must be eaten daily. Fortunately, Western climatic conditions allow oranges to ripen the year 'round. Right now when diets need them most, seedless navel oranges are at their best for eating quality and due to a plentiful crop are selling at bargain prices. They are a golden health insurance you can wisely give your family.

THE LATEST NOXIOUS WEEDS

The Dominion Seed Branch announces the latest noxious weed seed to appear in Canada, namely, the hoary peppergrass, and in co-operation with provincial Departments of Agriculture is pursuing investigations as to its source and the prevention of its attaining widespread distribution. The seed of this peppergrass was discovered last winter by the Dominion Seed Branch Laboratory at Toronto in one of two samples of Ontario-grown clover seed. It is not new to North America as it is distributed from coast to coast in the United States. It is also prevalent in New Zealand. The plant is perennial with cord-like root stalks which make it very difficult to eradicate. Casual observers might confuse it with field peppergrass which is fairly common in some of the clover growing areas in Western Ontario, but field peppergrass is biennial and therefore much less objectionable. The seeds of the two are very much alike.

THE TWO PEANUT VENDORS

Once upon a time there were two peanut vendors. They set up their stands adjacent to each other on a busy board-walk in an amusement park. Each stocked the same quality of peanuts, displayed them with equal prominence and had stands exactly alike.

The first peanut vendor had a small steam whistle on his stand that piped continuously. The second peanut vendor had none. As the crowd milled past they were attracted by the shrill whistle and bought peanuts. The second peanut vendor got only the tailings.

All people must buy necessities. The more fortunate buy luxuries. They buy from the vendor who whistles the loudest.

So blow your whistle, brother, and sell your peanuts. And the best way to blow it is by consistent advertising.

All necessary inspections are made by the Health Animals Branch of cattle and dairies to comply with the United States Import Milk Act. There are six shipping plants in Ontario, and one individual permit each in Quebec and in Saskatchewan.

NEWS & VIEWS OF TOWN AND DISTRICT

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Meester on January 10th, a boy.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. H. Morse, of Irma, at the Wainwright municipal hospital on January 14th, a girl.

BORN—To Mr. and Mrs. C. Roseau, of Chauvin, at the Wainwright municipal hospital, on January 15th, a boy.

A very pleasant bridge party was given on Thursday evening last when Mrs. E. R. Frickleton entertained.

Despite conditions generally all over the province, it is pleasing to note that the slaughtering of the buffalo, the work on the new school and the oil well refinery operations have taken care of the unemployment situation here to such an extent that not one family has had to apply for relief to date this winter.

Mr. Beaulieu, manager of the Gold Standard Refining Co. had both day and night crews at work last week pouring cement for the foundations of the new stills, and provided the weather still remains fine the actual erection of the new buildings will commence at once. Carloads of materials are on the way here, and this will give employment to quite a number of men.

A representative of the mortgage company of the Commercial Life Co. who was in town this week stated in conversation that Wainwright is standing the depression better than any other town or district he has visited.

Owing to the lateness of the trains on Monday, the installation of the officers of Wainwright lodge I. O. O. F. was postponed until next Monday at 8 p.m.

Dr. H. L. Courrier was a business visitor to the city for a few days last week.

We learn that the animals on the fox farm west of town in charge of Mr. Jack Taylor are all standing the cold weather nicely and have increased so rapidly that they require almost constant attention.

Now that a couple of rooms at the new school are in use, work has ceased until milder weather prevails.

Mr. H. McNern has rented a small house in town from Mrs. Christenson on Sixth avenue.

Mr. P. D. Laird who has been visiting his daughter in Edmonton, returned last week fully recovered from an injury he suffered from a slip on the ice last fall.

Mr. Albert Newman made an unsuccessful attempt last week to break a road for his truck from Auburndale to Wainwright; but the snowdrifts are deep and firmly packed. It will require a nice thaw to allow the cars to run. The sleighing is good and a number of teams are hauling wheat and hogs.

All members of St. Andrew's (Pres.) church are asked to be present next Sunday evening as a special congregational meeting has been called to follow the evening service.

On 50-cent wheat and restricted credit conditions you could not afford to rebuild if you lost your home by fire and would be forced to leave your farm or use make-shift living quarters. Don't take chances when you can insure your farm property for as low as $4 per $100 per year in a reliable company represented by Joe Welch.

The ladies are getting so enthusiastic over the new curling club that still another rink has been formed. This consists of Mrs. C. McKenzie (skip), Mrs. A. Wittmann, Mrs. J. Laird and Mrs. G. Salsbury. The girls have kindly given over one sheet of ice each Saturday for the ladies' use in addition to the usual Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

Mr. W. E. Moffatt left last week to spend a couple of months with friends and relatives at the coast. He expects to return early in March to get back to the hard grind on the farm.

All business places in the town of Chauvin have agreed to close each Saturday night at 7:00 p.m. until further notice. This affects all except drug stores.

Mr. Earl Heffernan who was operated upon last week for appendicitis is now going along very nicely at the hospital.

Arrangements have been made which will bring the Huguenden puck chasers to town on Friday evening next to try conclusions with the local boys, and all are asked to turn out and give these sporty teams full support.

The big annual convention of the U.F.A. opened in Edmonton on Tuesday and will continue all week.

The Russian thistle is not a thistle and could be more appropriately called a tumble weed.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sanders of Irma were in town on business this week.

Yes, that sure was a tough cold spell but one good feature was that it stopped the steady stream of back-door lunches that we were kept busy handing out last summer. Even the worst weather in 34 years seems to have bag a silver lining.

Miss Coral Banks returned on Monday night's train from the coast and has resumed her teaching duties at the town school.

Mrs. Nela Nelson, of Heath, is staying in town while taking medical treatment.

A live animal weighing 1300 pounds, well finished, will yield a dressed carcass of 700 pounds. Of this, there are only about 200 pounds of really prime beef.

Mr. Phil Perras was a passenger on Monday's train to the city to answer the jury roll for Supreme Court sittings.

It is pleasing to know that the little Pedal boy from Irma is now recovering nicely from his recent operation there.

Perennial ryegrass, the earliest grass, successfully checked incursions of Canada thistle in experiments carried out in England.

Easter comes early this year, and a strange feature of that festival is that Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent is St. Valentine's Day and that Easter Sunday is April First (All Fool's Day).

Mr. Carl Stinert left for Minneapolis on Saturday last to spend the rest of the winter with his mother there. Before leaving he was the guest at a party given by several of his friends.

The big kill in the Buffalo Park is now practically completed, and this week will see the sharp-shooter putting away his gun until next fall. Altogether some 3,000 of the big beauties have "biten the dust."

During the winter breeding geese should be fed all the clover or alfalfa hay and roots they will eat, but grain should be fed sparingly.

COMING EVENTS

Plan to attend the Bobbie Burns Concert which is being arranged to be held on January 20th in St. Andrew's (Pres.) church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of that denomination. Everyone is invited. Admission 25c. A splendid Scotch supper is to be served.

The W. A. of the St. Thomas (Ang.) church are holding a whist drive in the I.O.O.F. hall on Wednesday, January 31st, at 8:00 p.m. Tickets 35c; lunch provided. Good prizes.

Mrs. Reinhardt, of Chauvin, who met with an accident at Chauvin last week is progressing very nicely at the hospital.

A new air-mail service right across Canada is mooted for the coming summer and this should give a good chance to talk up the Wainwright airport project which was dropped some time ago.

School Inspector Good is sure deserving of all sympathy these days. The roads cannot be travelled by car and the trains don't go to the school districts, but he still keeps busy on the job of getting in his welcome (?) visits to the kiddies and their instructors.

*** The prices for hogs and grain are going up, but lumber and all building material is at the lowest price for nearly twenty years. Take advantage of this to do your repairs and haul out your lumber while sleighing is good. We have an extremely large and well assorted stock at the Atlas yard. Joe Welch, manager.

To some of our readers who are in arrears. The Editor wants some potatoes and is willing to trade. Who'll be first with a bag of Irish apples?

Bill Stuart sent a fine bunch of hogs to market on his usual bi-monthly shipment on Tuesday.

Answering several enquiries we have had, the eclipse of the moon which will take place on January 30th, will not be visible in Alberta.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. W. Crowe is feeling a little stronger now after her long siege of illness.

Mrs. H. Cornish is home again now after being in the city for her sister's death and funeral.

We hear echoes of wedding bells in the air these days for a nuptial ceremony slated for early next month.
